"Jaw Dropping...Critic's Choice" - The Los Angeles Times

N*W*C
the race show!

*the smash comedy with the name nobody wants to say.

Long Beach City College Auditorium
produced by: SPEAK THEATER ARTS presented by ASS Board of Directors, LAC Cultural Affairs Council and Student Senate

September 6, 2007 8pm
Tickets: 562-938-4164
1 free ticket per ASB Card till 08/31/07
$10/per ticket no ASB Card or after 08/31/07 w/ASB Card
$8/per ticket Faculty/Staff w/ID

www.speaktheaterarts.com
Three young actors, of different ethnicities, have created a hilarious hip-hop send-up of their personal struggle to craft an assured personal identity while living in America's middle class culture. It is a theatre piece of rich in irony and humor. For some, the title is challenging, but in the end, the racial epithet is revealed for what it is - a distraction that keeps us from understanding and appreciating the beauty of our diversity and the integrity of our individuality. The themes of N"W"C are opportunities for valuable dialogue about the power and danger of racial stereotyping are many with this production – especially for college age audiences.

“In the equal-opportunity send of ‘NWC’ the race card gets played repeatedly to prove that it’s the human race that matters most.” – LOS ANGELES TIMES

“The eye-popping forefront of guerrilla theatre.” – SEATTLE WEEKLY

“In the age of Don Imus, Michael Richards, and renewed scrutiny of hip-hop lyrics and shock-jock blabbermouths, ‘N"W"C’, as it is called for short, examines the power of timeworn taboos, attempting to deflate them through a frontal, often funny, assault.” – THE NEW YORK TIMES